Take the bike and head over here with or without a helmet. I have an additional one.

Go to work on what Marie and I have produced.

I will leave behind both our computers. It may be better to load everything on Marie's computer since I am returning mine next week.

You have my credit card and if that doesn't work for whatever reason I assume you have enough cash to buy the webcam?

We are leaving now.

I bought a used bike yesterday and am about to get a helmet so that I can go for a ride. I would like to get the webcam tomorrow at the latest so that we/I can test it.

Call me when you get back from your ride.

Marie says that what I have been doing is “pretty precise, not trying to cover too many things at once” bearing in mind that she is not only clothed but fairly conservatively dressed.

Perhaps you want to come over and make sure everything is working right.

We are heading very shortly out the door, going on a bike ride, MDG

on her red scooter and me on the Ducati.

Now Marie is saying that she doesn't want to ride the scooter through heavy traffic in downtown La Jolla.

BTW will the webcam camera you have in mind be placed on either of our helmets?

Marie now saying that we have one of Sebastian Capella's masterpieces in the background as well as the "tTOo" [sic] piggies.

Make yourself at home!

Subject: IT IS UNBELIEBABLE ISNT IT? - WE DUG OUR HOLE AND REACHED CHINA-RE:

Your generation, John K. Pollard's generation, the one before him and ones in between him and you as well as the generation following you are brain dead and will have no interest whatsoever attending a single seminar-workshop I put on.

On the other hand if I were to get either my extraordinarily brilliant motivational speaker mother or even more on top of things brain of brains French-Canadian wife to dress as well as undress in front of me as I try and stay focused on the subject matter there is every chance I will attract the largest audience of modern day times.

JoNathan was listening very carefully this morning as Marie laid out what I needed today, "starting now as I take a shower, come with a layout of what you are going to say in your first 5 minute daily analysis of current events to be placed for free on the home page of just3ants.com" after providing the most funny and at the same time respectful improvisation of what my Royal Mater-Mother had to say on her record, THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING A WOMAN, just one of a series of lectures, now some 60 or so years old, but not all that "dated" and when considering where women were positioned in society back then, way ahead of men then they are today, women having so very compromised their very significant advantages over men in order to "bring home the bacon", you should listen carefully to what my very brilliant wife is now suggesting.

Make no mistake what Marie and I discussed that of course included verbiage and body movements which only a camera under the covers would have picked up went in JoNathan's one ear and out the other no different to all those hell bent on not going anywhere close to just3ants.com let alone hear what I will be saying each and every day, 5 minutes a day, on the most important issues of the day.

JoNathan is now on the phone with Marie having dropped off his bus boy job application, "Were you smiling? If he thought you were cool that is important!"

While Marie now tries to put together the remote microphone attachment on the one digital camera, and of course we don't have the instructions, I am deriving great energy from the most well formed waves rolling in.

Marie just said, "Ok! I will give you two minutes to prepare!"

While I try not to focus on my wife's exotic looks and a body that just won't quit,,, it would be wrong for me to go in to great detail as she prances in front of me clearing wine glasses from last night so that they don't appear on camera, let me suggest that the t-shirt idea is not a bad one once the website is more developed, when we are offering something, otherwise you lose the momentum, not to mention you have yet to respond to the two emails I sent you that has those who are not easily distracted such as Israeli Special Forces Commanding Officers smiling from ear to ear knowing what I great job I am doing in proving my case about the victors of World Oil War I and II as brain dead as a door nail.

Now, as I put on my not necessarily all that smiley face, let alone want to go out and "please the world" all the while describing why it is that there is no difference between US American politicians, please without calling upon your medical pot tweak the following in to "sumthing" [sic]

Bill "Rhodes-De Beers Scholar" Clinton says he has had hundreds of photos taken of him and his wife, Hilary a fatso "frontrunner" in a race of interchangeable ugly faced human beings, void of intellect and therefore spirituality; the mind, all chemistry that translates into the science back in to the math, the first indicator of the supernatural given how only an omnipotent power could have designed such an extraordinarily precise language that can translate each and every action apart from canvas art paintings where the very best artist painters can explain with mathematical precision everything down to the very last brushstroke versus those who slap on paint following their mindless emotions.

So is it trick photo?

The more I think about your idea, especially hearing what Marie has to say, it is a good idea your t-shirt idea and to not waste a moment getting the university kids involved, exactly what you were saying, "Go to the art department. Get them to develop a logo, and for us to offer them a cash prize and/or percentage of sales, so they are motivated to sell, why not?"

Marie is now saying,

"May be there is a way to get them to go to the website to buy the t-shirt. Try different ways and if it doesn't work then go back to the old ways, get pretty girls to wear them and it should be affordable."

Marie now saying, "Are you ready?"

So the daily 5 minute informative broadcasts are free and every quarter or so we come up with a seminar-workshop, the first being, "We dug our hole and reached China" although the first one, "We dug our hole all the way to China" may be better but it is of course not all that important.

Just because you are told, "Don't bite the hand that feeds you", does not mean you can do much if anything about your lack of intellect given how quick are us Americans void of art culture in favor of money culture not to embrace the 5,000 year old very learned art culture steep in the merit system where productivity breeds creativity and a competitive free market economy where the best and brightest today set the scholastic levels wherever they go within and outside of the awesome PROCC, instead to wag our pointed fingers at China and declare this 1.5 billion odd strong Chinese people who have been methodically exporting their happiness and productivity throughout the globe despite up against the military mite of the most oppressive regime in the history of the world and declare,

"China is the new enemy".

So good are US Americans with our stats and facts especially when it comes to Wall Street and our favorite sports teams but when asked to explain the numbers such as what else does the US export top prop up our worthless fictitious and so very blood stained Almighty US-De Beers dollar other than officially sanctioned violence in the form of weapons of war that include the most extraordinary propaganda comparable to only what the US accomplished with its Goebells, another nonsense talking head who had both a microphone, amplifier and broadcasting rights, we, so very talkative, are speechless.

The whole seminar is about the right of the individual not just each of us north Americans including Canadians to reclaim our rights beginning with withdrawing our support of each and every corrupt politician who we can now easily weed out simply by having them share their opinion on one or both subjects: first, The Diamond Invention Book written by Hollywood blockbuster author Edward Jay Epstein; and second, the ingenious Israeli Military Intelligence report which spells doom for the US economy from which there is no possibility of recovery without a most sincere apology for our unmistakable atrocities against humankind.

This seminar-workshop is not about how to take advantage and be just like the "smart money" and play the market, wait for stocks to go down and make like Dr. John K. Pollard Jr. more than a million dollars in a day all the while finding the time to pick pebbles off the beach of heavily city council and real estate corrupt Del Mar, California.

How long is that going to last? A million US Dollars may soon be worth nothing.

The initial fairy tale of America starting out on a solid, ethical and moral footing was initially a great idea; democracy was great, start your own business, prove yourself through hard work, now where has that gone?

Most would argue that it has gone to government, war, hunger where people feel so detached. The government is no longer representative. It is an entity of its own that doesn't represent the people. It is governed by the money power and that little percentage as soon as it gets "hot" they leave the country and go for something similar expecting to "cookie cut" the Americanization of the world ad-infinitum.

How do you wake up Us Americans to poverty without us Americans being at each other's throats?

And killing and robbing from each other doesn't work. The rich still benefit.

Maybe a "none vote"?

If you could convince 75% of the US Population to "none vote" because of non-representation, what could that mean apart from the entire US Congress stepping down?

This should be exposed.

In order to elect a government there should be a minimum of 75% of the population voting and if that is not so then they are not represented, then it is not a Constitution and it should have been built into the Constitution from the very start without us having to seek a Notational and then why not an international referendum.

This seminar-workshop is designed to make people think like human beings, not the ants they have become by an overbearing, over controlling dictatorship, a secret society not only envisioned by Cecil Rhodes DeBeers founder but implemented with precision engineering beginning with brainwashing propaganda a century old now.

If you cannot get the people to vote "at gun point", what next?

US candidates for President are paying US$200 a vote and maybe less than a third of American citizens will vote.

They should work a little harder for their votes.

It is unbelievable isn't it?

Put it on a small scale.

Let's say a village of 200 people and a third vote, does it really represent the people, because some of the people are rural or dumb; but because one third of the population have this money power interest in voting are deciding for all these "nincompoops" because that is the way they are thinking.

Does it really serve these nincompoops?

Of course not.

14th Century John Wycliffe encountered the same thing except they had a lot more "fork power".

If the hard working masses stopped their work it would affect the economy in an instant.

The corruption of the church and state owning pretty much everything and everyone is really not any different today other than we, US Americans have currently sufficient slaves around the world to cover any short-term shortfall.

People are so conditioned. They don't even realize the power they have to stop picking up garbage, fruits, laundry.

The rich are used to taking advantage of course. Lack of information. There is a need for a "voice" out there and usually it is too violent, wouldn't you agree?

If they would all just stop working altogether for one day then two days, it would be a different story.

That was the unions before it got corrupted.

Stop all the cooks in the restaurants, the washers, the illegal immigrants, those nannies, even the regular people, like busboys, you know people in hotels who pick up dirty as well as clean sheets, all these really hard working people, and combine that with the power of the internet, enough to crash what at first blush appears to be an inexhaustible gravy train.

But "sum" [sic] of us may still after reading everything I have to say be thinking it is impossible to have coalition of all these people.

And then there is the awesome Peoples Republic of Communist China and they too are increasingly "hooked" on western civilization, they don't want to listen, they just want the gravy train and they will!!!

Let me repeat.

And they will!!!

The PROCC know their history as well as the history of the US which began with colonies all owned by British corporations and whose officers knew better than to bite the hand that fed them beginning with George Washington.

Think about how you can judge whether someone has a combination of a value system and conditioning to see them through the hard times coming up.

Suddenly everyone is faced with the same reality, can I do with less?

As a businessperson how can I make my customer want me? That requires a lot of creativity if you don't have something substantial to offer and maybe that guy you are working for should think really hard about what he is offering that is so different.

It is no longer hard work, nothing to be discovered.

It is coming back to that. This is where people are having a hard time.

People are going to have to be really creative or a combination of creativity and hard work just to survive.

They will have to be truthful.

Middlemen are long gone. That is half the US American population, if not two-thirds.

So it is no longer about material wealth much more about knowledge where you do with far less.

You don't have to change your car every year, don't need to follow fashion , get a new TV screen, which Europeans have understood for a long time, quality versus quantity.

My God, there are some good waves out there and here I am typing away at a 100 miles per hour and now my wife is again bending over in her own, not JoNathan's 28 inch waist brown corduroys, the one Ethiopian gold cross we got from Dr. John K. Pollard dangling perfectly between her most awesome well shaped French-Canadian skier legs.

Now imagine yourself completely in a world where everyone is equal, there is no need for food. You have your house your warmth, so what becomes important is your knowledge.

But it is not like this here. Knowledge is only important if it serves you to get that material.

Yeah US Americans are highly competitive, there is no sharing of knowledge; so afraid that they have been brainwashed into believing that they have the technical knowledge, that that is their strength.

How they deal with new information that is so very upsetting has them going into denial. They don't want to stress too much their established way of doing things. It is difficult.

Again imagine you have been thinking about something for 30 years and someone such as me who you have never heard of before brings you something new, a truth, that undermines your whole being; your security blanket however immersed in falsehoods and corruption of the Nth Degree, falls apart at the seams in an instant.

Imagine the scene, "Emperor without clothes" and what you next see is Hilary having sex with Bill.

O my God, what a most disgusting thought.

Of course it is to be expected that US Americans will shut down. We are morons.

We go into state of mind where the first thing we do is view the messenger as extreme rather than examine "Why have I been thinking about this for 30 years am I stupid?"

You understand how easy one can become a moron in an instant.

Do you want to be that?

You become a moron if you don't have enough intellect to say, "Hay, this can improve my wellbeing, my intellect."

But most people your age and older as well as younger who are poorly conditioned from child birth are too comfortable with their physical-material positions, the all American dream, the house, the kids, the Norman Rockwell painting; perfect home, perfect family, no disease, two cars, two car garage, because that is the essence of their being, acquiring this perfect American image; however, Disneyland like.

So you see there is absolutely nothing for US Americans to fall back on.

Our founding fathers spun us all the most incredible yarn that is now unraveling in real time as Knowledge-Information-Light power, power to change the world is at each of our fingertips, beginning with the much more wired peoples Republic of Communist China who now know, thanks of course to me, how best to defend against western propaganda, the only weapon left in the arsenal of the corrupt 3 Branches of the US Government, a regime of regimes.

No American Commanding Officer can forget the decision this past Thanksgiving by the PROCC to withdraw landing rights to 3 US Navy ships and their armada leaving thousands of American Navy personnel stranded at sea but still feasting on their turkeys, some no doubt thinking this past Thanksgiving could be their last.

No American Commanding Officer commanding American service people to kill the poor of the world increasingly better trained as well as armed beginning with much better intelligence, can forget the total lack of intelligence displayed very recently by the Captain of the US Hawker as well as his superiors all the way up to the United States Minister of Defense, Robert Gates who in 1994 publicly called for a military strike on North Korea, all in an effort to keep the pressure on China, specifically to make it impossible for the government of China to continue their so much more democratic rule that can be seen all over the faces of the increasingly smiling Chinese versus the long faces of Us Americans and increasingly so.

My generation and younger are looking for something to rally around. With the collapse of the economy they will find it. There is no reason to fight a culture that has been bred to be receptive to marketing. I know that you are not into the idea of selling shirts, but it is a quick way to let pop culture take its course. Maybe we don't sell them through the website, but we need to get the name repeated in the public and that is a consistent easy way to reach younger generations.

We contact college art departments, allow select students to feature their work and their signature with just3ants.com and the date written below. It would be a way to reach the independent thinking college students and give beginning artist a chance to feature their work.
