Subject: BOX-Any luck with reaching Brian?

Was this your way of letting me know that "sum" [sic] of my messages were not coming through?

Do you have a suggestion, apart from me having Vicky Schiff, co-managing director of the Wetherly Capital email their "sugar daddy" Ron Burkle and invite them both to attend a meeting I hope to convene at the Camp Pendleton Marine base; bearing in mind Captain Brian Steidle once commanded some 300 Marines who lets assume have a typical household of 4.5 who in turn know on average 20 people with email addresses who in turn have 13 odd different people on their email list and so the numbers begin to look at least a little interesting; bearing in mind that I didn't get off a ship yesterday in New York harbor before doing a number of "sensitive assignments" including each and everyone I did for

Randolf Apperson Hearst, then chairman of the board of Hearst Corporation, bearing in mind that the Hearsts not only had a chauffeur but a doorman who wouldn't take long to remember you especially if I was broadcasting to them reminding them of what exactly it was about me that had people like the Hearsts so very "taken", bearing in mind I only spent a handful of months working extraordinarily closely with Mr. Hearst and his wife Veronica versus a good number of people I got to know awfully well in the 21 years shy of one week I lived in my mother and father's heavily frequented households, bearing in mind the first time I heard of "our man Roger" as in Roger W. Robinson who along with Sec. James C. Baker were in "command and control" of the Reagan White House just when DeBeers thought it smart to explode the already out of control USA industrial-military-complex, bearing in mind that in March 1982 when "our man Roger" first joined the White House as the very top spook in the National Security Council I was just turning 25 and "fighting fit", bearing in mind that "our man Roger" even if he isn't part of our roundtable discussion can still be represented by anyone of us chameleons who is so well informed, bearing in mind I am just playing a mind game to keep you on your toes.

Now I know your granddaughter Kristin isn't all that goo-goo-eyed over Ron Burkle as she was prior to you "offering her up".

Not to mention right now as she thinks more about who else besides for you and me and others she may or may not know blind copied who may enjoy not letting her know when just smiling at her when going out their way to her favorite java shop just being so very "friendly", throwing out a word like "weather" and Kristin not knowing whether they are talking about this very specific email mentioning the Wetherly Capital Group with whom you remember I had this consulting agreement along with a side deal between me and Vicky Schiff that had her "kicking back" – now you thinking of that one "leg fight scene" in the WCG's board room - to me 10% of everything she made "off the top" given how well I had extricated her from the clutches of Lou Gonda, the second largest shareholder of AIG [American International Group], such an original document kept in this joint
