Subject: A good time to...----...

Buy gold bullion, better yet the very best of oil paintings such as yours so extraordinarily well priced right now which should change when you and I next get together.

Gold last trading at US$937.50 and the "trend" looks like it is going lower fast!

Think about who sets the trend beginning with the decision to begin murdering the study of classical art training in favor of us being "emotional" to the point that after a century now of being poorly bred we can't even find the emotion to do anything about the atrocities inflicted on such beautiful black skinned peoples of South Africa, instead these "emotionless" continue to show not only their "true colors" but their increasing desperateness, realizing how exposed they are to my extraordinary "footprint" on the Internet.

And having not realized how transparent they remain by their "deafening silences", having to emerge every so often when asking, "Please Sir, can I have some more?", such flat line, sly English plotters who know only from always getting what they want, NOW rapidly "FEELING OUT" their EXPONENTIALLY decreasing number of friends to see how much they are aware of, and trying to spin things accordingly; finding inevitably, and rather quickly, very temporary relief in those "like-minded" who assure them that it doesn't matter what people like you and me think, all the while those doing the "reassuring" are doing nothing other than trying to convince themselves.

Wouldn't it be so very nice if everyone presented today their balance sheet so we can all see who is getting bought in "real time" to remain "deafeningly silent"?

Let's give away the Pathfinder if we have to today! Adam might be interested.

How about you and I go around the world in 80 days maybe pass through Melbourne, Australia and pick up from my Dad a rather large photograph of me jumping over 5 barrels on ice, I believe?

Ps – One of Marjorie Chase's ice shows that I was in as a kid was called, "Around the world in 80 days" and the more I think about the more convinced I am it was the ice show that had me jumping over barrels that of course didn't go unnoticed by only my Royal Mater-Mother who also wasn't alone in figuring out there are increased risks, especially on a battlefield, to be ever so careful when around non-athletes, especially those who "play pro".
