Subject: KILL PIG-COME BACK-DAVID BEN GURION - WE SHALL FIGHT THE WAR AGAINST HITLER- tomorrow is another day-joe kennedy-umpapa, umpapa-conditioning-fun.RE: survey

Shunit – Thank you for thinking of me and I assume only the best of you wanting me to add these email addresses to my list.

Before I get into a rather important hyperlink I added to “connecting dot 2” above the name virulent anti-Semite Joseph P. Kennedy in my email to Adam L. Tucker last evening, CLICK HERE, I will share with you a summary of a relatively short conversation I had with a gentleman still sitting less than a meter away from me here once again at the not-in-Israel Starbucks coffee-steamed milk shop on the corner of 15th Street and Highway 101 in heavily corrupt Del Mar, California.

Our conversation first began when I overheard his wife telling him about a pig story she had heard last evening that kept her awake, deciding not to tell him until just now, since she was concerned that he would also have nightmares.

Apparently, a lady friend who raises farm animals for market had one pig that she had got quite attached to and for whatever reason hadn't got around to selling it at the Del Mar fair, possibly because the pig wasn't yet fat enough.

Finally this lady friend decided sell the pig privately.

This lady telling the story that was simply impossible for me not to hear, immediately upon her husband having got his coffee and feeling comfortable reviewing his monstrous software corporation's pending contract with Microsoft, knowing that he was sufficiently "self-absorbed", unloaded the "coup de grace".

The buyer of the pig, instantly after completing the purchase, pulled out a gun and shot the pig. The pig did not die immediately; instead it raced frantically over to his owner for protection.

I never got around to asking how long the pig took to die.

Worth repeating, I think you would agree, since you may have trouble accessing my hyperlinks, that Auschwitz was established by an order from Heinrich Himmler, head of the SS, on April 27th, 1940.

And of course who can forget Oscar Schindler coming to Auschwitz to save 300 Schindler-women from certain death.

Not to mention that KZ Dachau was the first concentration camp established in Nazi Germany. The camp opened on March 22, 1933, the same year Nazi Joe Kennedy, father of Senator Ted Kennedy et al was nominated by Nazi DeBeers controlled President Roosevelt to be the inaugural Chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission.

To mention little yet again, that Senator Ted Kennedy who attended the funeral of his family's major financial backer American Charles Engelhard on March 2nd 1971 at St. Mary's Abby Church, Morris Town, two words, New Jersey is the full brother of President John "Eich Bin Ein Beliner" Kennedy as well as Robert F. Kennedy who soon after graduating from the University of Virginia Law School went to work for fascist Wisconsin Senator Joe McCarthy a close friend of RFK's father Joseph P. Kennedy.

To mention in passing that Mossad assassinated Charles Engelhard was an "open supporter" of the South African Apartheid Regime who ruled over the overwhelming majority black population of South Africa for an uninterrupted period of some 45 odd years with a diamond studded iron fist grip courtesy of the 3 Branches of the United States Government who so brutally usurped their limited authority when commanding the Armed Forces of the United States of America to commit the most unspoken genocides that continue to this day.

Worth mentioning that KZ Dachau first inmates were primarily political prisoners, Social Democrats, Communists, trade unionists, habitual criminals, homosexuals, Jehovah's Witnesses, beggars, vagrants, hawkers.

Not to mention yet again bootlegger Joe P. Kennedy, father of Senator Ted Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy and John F. Kennedy, first found fame and fortune as an "insider trader" and "stock manipulator" before moving to ALSO DeBeers controlled Hollywood in 1926.

Cutting and pasting from Joseph P. Kennedy – Wikipedia:

After Prohibition ended, Kennedy amassed a large fortune when his company, Somerset Importers, became the exclusive American agent for Gordon's Dry Gin and Dewar's Scotch. Anticipating the end of Prohibition, he assembled a large inventory of stock, which he later sold for a profit of millions of dollars when Prohibition was repealed in 1933. He invested this money in residential and commercial real estate in New York, and Hialeah Race Track in Hialeah, Florida. His most important purchase was the largest office building in the country, Chicago's Merchandise Mart, which gave his family an important base in that city and an alliance with the Irish-American political leadership there.

You will recall that Chicago, the Windy City, was my "first stop" when emigrating from Durban, South Africa on March 17th, 1978, the same year Hollywood blockbuster author Edward Jay Epstein began writing his epic non-fiction most fascinating book, The Diamond Invention, detailing the extraordinary devious nature of the De Beers-Anglo American Cartel, the mafia of mafia, special interest of special interest group who from their start at the turn of the last century, financed by American bankers led by J. P. Morgan who also financed the American led 8 Allied nation invasion of China in 1900 and the American-Anglo Boer War of 1899-1902, have been the world's most brutal and inefficient allocator of the world's precious resources, human beings the least of the DAAC's concern.

I spent a fair amount of time at the Kennedy's Merchandise Mart even prior to my Royal Mater-Mother visiting with me in the spring of 1980, making certain that I was "fully equipped" to "make good" on her efforts to secure for me a very senior position within the DeBeers highly dynamic organization, and none quite as pivotal in the extraordinary money laundering chain than Codiam Inc. headquartered on 47th Street, New York City.

Few even minor historian "buffs" would argue with the fact that Chicago was vitally important to Joe Kennedy's "favored" son, John F. Kennedy winning the 1960 Presidential election.

"I only debate people who agree with me!" Zena Rosland Badash-Ash Gevisser Zulman

You will recall the 1960 Presidential debates between JFK and Richard Nixon who "sumhow" [sic] forgot to have his entourage remind him to shave.

My Royal Mater's very carefully crafted memoirs which she began broadcasting only on October 9th, 2001, the day after I attended a rather important board meeting of the Wetherly Capital Group under the command and control of Ron Burkle who provided seed capital of US$2 million and Dick Ziman who in addition to being the Chairman of the Board of WCG was also Chief Executive Officer of ARI Realty a very significant New York Stock, do not make mention of her two famous clients, Aristotle Onassis and his arch-rival Senator Robert F. Kennedy and only brief mention of Maurice and Janie Gevisser, the parents of my uncle David Gevisser, who remains the American head of the DeBeers-Anglo American Cartel and who was singularly responsible for me getting my "nothing to speak of job" at Codiam Inc., some two years after he wrote me a letter of introduction dictated by my Royal Mater whose most important client of course was my father's first cousin, my uncle Dave Gevisser who immediately upon the death of American Charles Engelhard became the executor of his estate; the US$6 million initial payment a most "token" sum of money considering the value of Engelhard's beyond belief mineral rich estate all acquired by the barrel of a gun belonging to the most brutal 3 Branches of the United States Government.

On October 8th, 2001 I arrived 10 minutes late to the Wetherly Capital board meeting that was attended by both co-managing directors of WCG, Dan Weinstein and Vicky Schiff as well Ziman and his two most senior executors of ARI Realty which didn't prevent Ziman from "cutting to chase" and asking me point blank,

"What do you bring to the table?"

In preparation for the next meeting I prepared a two page report that addressed in "sumwhat" [sic] more detail a whole lot more than Ziman and Co. expected let alone wanted to hear. Click HERE and HERE.

Assisting me greatly in this very carefully worded document was Citicorp Venture Corporation officer, Newell Starks who I had worked closely with for a decade prior, first meeting this rather bright financial engineer - and in an earlier career an engineer at Texas Instrument where Newell is credited with inventing the notebook computer - when I was representing the Steinhardt Divestiture Fund out of New York City and Newell, well-known and more importantly, perfectly understood by my very intelligent French-Canadian wife, was in the middle of what Newell believed was his last "work out/corporate restructuring" as CVC were about to put him, at age 40, "out to pasture" following his "bull in a china shop" mentality when fixing the problems of prior acquisitions; bearing in mind that CVC specializes in "management friendly" i.e. "shareholder hostile" takeovers.

Not to mention that of course CVC is for all intent and purposes a wholly owned subsidiary of DeBeers as are each and every financial institution including insurance giants like AIG and the SDF, a wholly owned subsidiary of the criminal enterprise Steinhardt US$5 billion Hedge Fund, headed up by Mafioso kingpin Michael Steinhardt who got his start back in 1967 when another client-friend of mine, Irving Cooper was part of a handful of successful investors who collectively "anteed up" US$1 million in "startup capital" to give Steinhardt, age 27 his jumpstart down an extraordinarily long and successful money laundering operation, until "running in to me" in the early 1990s which again was when I first met Newell and we became close enough friends that I would loan this multi-millionaire a relatively paltry sum of US$45,000 to tide him over during a minor "cash crisis" following an unanticipated deluge of family counseling bills.

To mention little of why you would understand why it is that the Mossad haven't taken me up on my offer for them to purchase such a note that contains a rather lucrative "kicker" in the event that Sterling Capital that is controlled by CVC were to continue being successful executing to perfection, helped of course by Newell, in "shareholder hostile" takeovers.

That was enough of a digression, I think you would agree, to have me now go back to why in 1933 DeBeers controlled President Franklin D. Roosevelt made the "poor decision" to nominate Joseph P. Kennedy to become the first Chairman of the SEC assuming the position in 1934, the same year Albert Einstein, a resident of Princeton, University wrote on the return address on an envelope, "Concentration Camp, Princeton."

Would you know if gay men are more religious in getting colonoscopies?

Let me now come back to this 56-year old father of two young children who have just returned with their mother from church services at St. Peters Presbyterian Church, an easy pistol shot from where we are all seated enjoying this most wonderful sun filled Sunday.

Upon overhearing this never to forget pig, so much like a dog, so much more loyal than Black handed money children, rushing to its mama to save its bacon I was reminded of this pig story I have repeated time and again told to me by Devin Standard whose Danish wife grew up on a farm.

Again, this farmer was out and about with his young toddler around the pig pen when the phone rang inside the farmhouse that had the farmer distracted to the point that he forgot or just didn't know that if you murder someone and want to get rid of the body parts pigs are an excellent choice.

Thank God, right now I cannot, for the life of me, smell bacon.

And of course you are thinking both of Stephen Cohen's staple diet over at Codiam Inc. Bacon, Lettuce and Tomato sandwiches as well as thinking very seriously of becoming like my wife and me vegetarian especially when you figure out that not only does it make you slimmer and trimmer so long as you don't overdue the calories, but your sex life will greatly improve.

When the phone call was over the farmer returned to join his son who was now, or should I say what was left of him, dripping down the mouth of the pig.

Naturally, the farmer was "beside himself", an interesting English expression, and went back in to the farmhouse, got his shotgun and then shot the pig dead before turning it on himself.

Obviously I only told Devin's true story when this couples' children were still in church services.

Perhaps, before I head out to our stone home deep inside the Cleveland National Forest right after my delicious vegetarian lunch, I will drop by the church and ask the Parish priest if next Sunday he would allow me to talk to his congregation about the things I went on to mention to this one time-software engineer whose background is much more "risk assessment" than it is coming up with computer code to make stuff like going to an ATM for cash and having a pleasant and of course entertaining experience.

As I think I mentioned, I only told his attractive, in very good physical shape wife, Devin's pig story when her husband had left to get possibly a coffee refill.

Upon his return, his wife provided her little bit of a belly husband with sufficient comfort level that he should feel comfortable in entering in to a dialogue with me.

Naturally, I jumped in right away with suggesting that when he was done with the final edits of the Microsoft contract he think about "sum" [sic] of the things I had to say that included the following:

"You will only know the real strength of the agreement were you to end up in litigation and therefore you might want to think about a couple of things when doing your final review beginning with how long you think it will be before the capital and financial markets collapse given simply the 'perceived' and unsustainable level of risk. Just try placing yourself simply in the shoes of the average wage earner around the world who has not been to college but does own a TV, a radio, a couple of kids and enough spare time and change in his back pocket that will soon be worth more than paper money to when thinking about 'THE NEWS' put out by the bought and paid for media who know a thing or two about propoganda, that it is inevitable that this charade cannot go on forever, well before you litigate that contract, possibly even before you show up at work tomorrow?"

Of course after asking him what else has prevented catastrophe from already happening apart from an "Act of God" who must also be responsible for making me smart, I then spelled out very clearly our latest website www.just3ants.com that of course first had him searching for a pen and paper until I told him that his two kids would have no difficulty remembering, that quickly had him making absolutely certain that he would remember.

No one wants to be embarrassed in front of their kids unless of course they are brain dead.

No one with half a brain would think to call me like Adam L. Tucker's amoral family, an "idiot let alone "THE IDIOT".

And those brain dead who do are simply helping fulfill the prophesy contained in scripture that the dead will rise.

Create a mental picture of the living brain dead with a perfect vacuum of space between their ears, the result of a lifetime of lying, creating endless short-circuits being illuminated for those of who know better than to turn a blind eye to evil, thinking one bad deed can be excused one after the next.

Of course I gave this gentleman a fair amount of my background including the fact that I have been from a very young age extraordinarily closely connected to Israeli Military Intelligence, and those I refer to as the very deep underground Jewish Underground, possibly more so than my highly secretive Royal Mater.

Let me now get back to Joseph Kennedy's first major involvement in a national political campaign which was his support in 1932 for Franklin D. Roosevelt's bid for the Presidency. He donated, loaned, and raised a substantial amount of money for the campaign. Roosevelt rewarded this DeBeers Nazi with an appointment as again the first Chairman of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Kennedy had hoped for a Cabinet post, such as Treasury.

Cutting and pasting, J.P. Kennedy – Wikipedia:

Kennedy's reforming work as SEC Chairman was widely praised on all sides, as investors realized the SEC was protecting their interests. His knowledge of the financial markets equipped him to identify areas requiring the attention of regulators. One of the crucial reforms was the requirement for companies to regularly file financial statements with the SEC which broke what some saw as an information monopoly maintained by the Morgan banking family. Kennedy left the SEC in 1935 to take over the Maritime Commission, which built on his wartime experience in running a major shipyard.

You recall me mentioning in this email to Adam L. Tucker last evening about Chapter 13, THE DIAMOND MIND:

Again, cutting and pasting from Epstein's epic non-fiction novel, The Diamond Invention:

In September 1938, Harry Oppenheimer journeyed to New York City to investigate the possibilities of creating such a diamond mind. He was met by Gerald M. Lauck, who was the president of one of the leading advertising agencies in the United States, N. W. Ayer. Lauck and N. W. Ayer had been recommended to Oppenheimer by the Morgan Bank, which had helped his father consolidate his financial empire. His bankers were clearly concerned by the worldwide decline in the price of diamonds.

Again, cutting and pasting from Wikipedia – Joseph P. Kennedy:

In 1938, Roosevelt appointed Kennedy as the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's (Britain). Kennedy's Irish and Catholic status did not bother the British; indeed he hugely enjoyed his leadership position in London society, which stood in stark contrast to his outsider status in Boston. His daughter Kathleen married the heir to the Duke of Devonshire, the head of one of England's grandest aristocratic families. Kennedy rejected the warnings of Winston Churchill that compromise with Nazi Germany was impossible; instead he supported Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of appeasement in order to stave off a second world war that would be a more horrible "armageddon" than the first. Throughout 1938, as the Nazi persecution of Jews intensified, Kennedy attempted to obtain an audience with Adolf Hitler. Shortly before the Nazi aerial bombing of British cities began in September 1940, Kennedy sought a personal meeting with Hitler, again without State Department approval, "to bring about a better understanding between the United States and Germany."

Kennedy argued strongly against giving aid to Britain.

"Democracy is finished in England. It may be here.", stated Ambassador Kennedy, Boston Sunday Globe of November 10, 1940. In a one simple statement, Joe Kennedy ruined any future chances of becoming US president, metaphorically committing political suicide. While Blitzkrieg bombs fell daily on England, Nazi troops occupied Poland, Belgium, the Netherlands, and France, Ambassador Kennedy unambiguously and repeatedly stated his belief that the war was not about saving democracy from National Socialism (Nazism) or Fascism. In the now-infamous, long, rambling interview with two newspaper journalists, Louis M. Lyons of the Boston Globe and Ralph Coglan of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Kennedy opined:

"It's all a question of what we do with the next six months. The whole reason for aiding England is to give us time." ... "As long as she is in there, we have time to prepare. It isn't that she's (Britain's) fighting for democracy. That's the bunk. She's fighting for self-preservation, just as we will if it comes to us." ... "I know more about the European situation than anybody else, and it's up to me to see that the country gets it,"

In British government circles during the Blitz, Ambassador Kennedy was widely disparaged as a defeatist and also known as a coward, and who became known as Jittery Joe for his propensity to run for cover to an air raid shelter located near Windsor at the slightest sign of an air raid.

When the American public and Roosevelt Administration officials read his quotes on democracy being "finished", and his belief that the Battle of Britain wasn't about "fighting for democracy.", all of it being just "bunk", they realized that Ambassador Kennedy could not be trusted to represent the United States. In the face of national public outcry, he was offered the chance to fall on his sword, and he submitted his resignation later that month.

Throughout the rest of the war, relations between Kennedy and the Roosevelt Administration remained tense (especially when Joe Kennedy, Jr., vocally opposed FDR's renomination). Having effectively removed himself from the national stage, Joe Sr. sat out the war on the sidelines. Kennedy did however stay active in the smaller venues of rallying Irish and Roman Catholic Democrats to vote for Roosevelt's reelection in 1944. He claimed to be eager to help the war effort, but as a result of his previous gaffes, he was neither trusted nor re-invited.

With his own ambitions for the White House in self-inflicted ruins, he held out great hope for his eldest son Joseph Jr. to gain the presidency. However, Joe Jr. was killed in England while undertaking a high-risk bombing mission. Kennedy then turned his attention to grooming the second son, John F. Kennedy, who won the 1960 election.

My wireless internet connection has now terminated.

Now find a way to get to Chapter 18, THE AMERICAN CONSPIRACY and then scroll down to the section which details a meeting between DeBeers President-elect John F. Kennedy and Harry Oppenheimer at the Carlyle Hotel.

My wireless internet connection is back.

Again, cutting and pasting from Joseph P. Kennedy – Wikipedia”

Possible Anti-Semitism

Kennedy was (for a while) a close friend with the leading Jewish lawyer Felix Frankfurter, who helped Kennedy get his sons into the London School of Economics, where they worked with Harold Laski, a leading Jewish intellectual and prominent Socialist. While holding positive attitudes towards individual Jews, Kennedy's views of the Jews as a people were allegedly, by his own admission, overwhelmingly negative.

According to Harvey Klemmer, who served as one of Kennedy's embassy aides, Kennedy habitually referred to Jews as "kikes or sheenies." Kennedy allegedly told Klemmer that "[some] individual Jews are all right, Harvey, but as a race they stink. They spoil everything they touch." When Klemmer returned from a trip to Germany and reported the pattern of vandalism and assault on Jews by Nazis, Kennedy responded "well, they brought it on themselves."

On June 13, 1938, Kennedy met with Herbert von Dirksen, the German ambassador in London, who claimed in Berlin that Kennedy had told him that "it was not so much the fact that we want to get rid of the Jews that was so harmful to us, but rather the loud clamor with which we accompanied this purpose. [Kennedy] himself fully understood our Jewish policy." Kennedy's main concern with such violent acts against German Jews as Kristallnacht was that they generated bad publicity in the West for the Nazi regime, a concern he communicated in a letter to Charles Lindbergh.

Kennedy had a close friendship with Nancy Astor; the correspondence between them is reportedly replete with anti-Semitic tropes. As Edward Renehan notes:

As fiercely anti-Communist as they were anti-Semitic, Kennedy and Astor looked upon Adolf Hitler as a welcome solution to both of these "world problems" (Nancy's phrase)... Kennedy replied that he expected the "Jew media" in the United States to become a problem, that "Jewish pundits in New York and Los Angeles" were already making noises contrived to "set a match to the fuse of the world."

By August 1940, Kennedy worried that a third term for Roosevelt meant war; as Leamer reports, "Joe believed that Roosevelt, Churchill, the Jews and their allies would manipulate America into approaching Armageddon." Nevertheless, Kennedy supported Roosevelt's third term in return for Roosevelt's support of Joseph Kennedy Jr. for Governor of Massachusetts in 1942. Even during the height of the conflict, however, Kennedy remained "more wary of" prominent American Jews such as Felix Frankfurter than he was of Hitler.

Kennedy told reporter Joe Dinneen:

It is true that I have a low opinion of some Jews in public office and in private life. That does not mean that I... believe they should be wiped off the face of the earth... Jews who take an unfair advantage of the fact that theirs is a persecuted race do not help much... Publicizing unjust attacks upon the Jews may help to cure the injustice, but continually publicizing the whole problem only serves to keep it alive in the public mind.

When Dinneen wrote The Kennedy Family, he was pressured to remove these quotations from the book by John F. Kennedy himself. Dineen complied.

Political alliances

Kennedy used his wealth and connections to build a national network of supporters that became the base for his sons' political careers. He especially concentrated on the Irish American community in large cities, particularly Boston, New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and several New Jersey cities.

Alliance with Joe McCarthy

Kennedy's close ties with Republican Senator Joseph McCarthy strengthened his family's position among Irish Catholics, but weakened it among liberals who strongly opposed McCarthy. Even before McCarthy became famous in 1950, Kennedy had forged close ties with the Republican Senator from Wisconsin. Kennedy often brought him to Hyannis Port as a weekend house guest in the late 1940s. McCarthy at one point dated Patricia Kennedy. When McCarthy became a dominant voice of anti-Communism starting in 1950, Kennedy contributed thousands of dollars to McCarthy, and became one of his major supporters. In the Senate race of 1952, Joseph apparently worked a deal so that McCarthy, a Republican, would not make campaign speeches for the GOP ticket in Massachusetts. In return, Congressman John F. Kennedy, running for the Senate seat, would not give any anti-McCarthy speeches that his liberal supporters wanted to hear. In 1953 at Kennedy's urging McCarthy hired Robert F. Kennedy (age 27) as a senior staff member of the Senate's investigations subcommittee, which McCarthy chaired. In 1954, when the Senate was threatening to condemn McCarthy, Senator John Kennedy faced a dilemma. "How could I demand that Joe McCarthy be censured for things he did when my own brother was on his staff?" asked JFK. By 1954, however, Robert Kennedy and McCarthy's chief aide, Roy Cohn, had had a falling out and Robert no longer worked for McCarthy. John Kennedy had a speech drafted calling for the censure of McCarthy but he never delivered it. When the Senate voted to censure McCarthy on December 2, 1954, Senator Kennedy was in the hospital and never indicated then or later how he would vote. Joe strongly supported McCarthy to the end.

Presidential ambitions for family

Joe Kennedy was a fiercely ambitious individual who thrived off competition and winning. And, in his eyes, the ultimate prize was being president of the United States. Joe Kennedy wanted his first son, Joseph Kennedy Jr. to become president, but after his death in WWII, he became determined to make his second oldest son, John F. Kennedy, president.

Joe Kennedy was consigned to the political shadows after his remarks during WWII that "Democracy is finished...", and he remained an intensely controversial figure among U.S. citizens because of his suspect business credentials, his Roman Catholicism, his opposition to Roosevelt's foreign policy, and his support for Joseph McCarthy. As a result, his presence in

John F. Kennedy's presidential campaign had to be stymied. Having him in the spotlight would hurt John, making it look as if it were his father who was running for president.

However, Joe Kennedy still drove the campaign behind the scenes. He played a central role in planning strategy, fundraising, and building coalitions and alliances. Joe supervised the spending and to some degree the overall campaign strategy, helped select advertising agencies, and was endlessly on the phone with local and state party leaders, newsmen, and business leaders. He had met thousands of powerful people in his career, and often called in his chips to help his sons. He would use this to his son's advantage.

His father's connections and influence was turned directly into political capital for the senatorial and presidential campaigns of John, Robert and Ted. Historian Thomas J. Whalen describes Joe's influence on John Kennedy's policy decisions in his biography of Joseph Kennedy. Joe was influential in creating the Kennedy Cabinet (Robert Kennedy as Attorney General for example). However, in 1961, Joe Kennedy suffered from a heart attack that placed even more limitations on his influence in his son's political careers. Joseph Kennedy expanded the Kennedy Compound, which continues as a major center of family get-togethers.

When John F. Kennedy was asked about the level of involvement and influence that his father had held in his razor-thin presidential victory, JFK would joke that on the eve before the election, his father had asked him the exact number of votes he would need to win - there was no way he was paying "for a landslide." John's presidency was a victory for Joe. He saw it as a step forward for, not just his son, but the entire Kennedy family. Joe was a family man and strategically constructed his family's image towards the public. He once said, "Image is reality", and the presidency framed the Kennedy family picture.

Stroke and death

On December 19, 1961, at the age of 73, he suffered a major stroke, which he survived. He was left paralysed on the right side, confining him to a wheelchair for the rest of his life, and he lost all power of speech. Despite being severely disabled from the stroke, Kennedy remained aware of the tragedies that befell his family until his own death, which occurred on November 18, 1969, two months after his eighty-first birthday.

My conversation with this obviously senior executive of one of the World's top 3 software companies didn't take long for me to explain in simple English that members of the Jewish Underground saw "no way out" than opening up a "second front".

Let me explain this very precise thinking that you won't find as well spelled out anywhere else unless heavily cutting and pasting from Wikipedia.

The Jewish Underground, made up principally of David Ben Gurion's Hagannah and Menachem Begin's Irgun were fighting the British-Americans for a Jewish homeland beginning in earnest after the 1920 Arab riots and 1921 Jaffa riots, when the Jewish leadership in Palestine believed that the British (whom the League of Nations had given a mandate over Palestine in 1920) had no desire to confront local Arab gangs over their attacks on Palestinian Jews. Realizing that they could not rely on the British administration for protection from these gangs, the Hagannah was created to protect their farms and Kibbutzim. In addition to guarding Jewish communities, the role of the Haganah was to warn the residents of and repel attacks by Palestinian Arabs.

Following the Arab massacres of 1929, when my pogrom orphaned maternal great grandmother, Nechie Badash, an early resident of Tel-Aviv and close confidante of Ben Gurion, both coming from the same tiny village of Plonsk, White Russia-Poland, returned to England to raise my mother, born May 30th, 1929, the Haganah's role changed dramatically.

It became a much larger organization encompassing nearly all the youth and adults in the Jewish settlements, as well as thousands of members from the cities. It also acquired foreign arms and began to develop workshops to create hand grenades and simple military equipment, transforming from an untrained militia to a capable underground army.

Haganah members
in training (1947)

In 1936 the Haganah fielded 10,000 mobilized men along with 40,000 reservists. During the 1936-1939 Arab revolt in Palestine, it participated actively to protect British interests and to quell Arab rebellion using the FOSH, and then HISH units. Although the British administration did not officially recognize the Haganah, the British security forces cooperated with it by forming the Jewish Settlement Police, Jewish Auxiliary Forces and Special Night Squads, which were trained and led by Colonel Orde Wingate. The battle experience gained during this time was to become very useful in the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

But now we have to go back a decade to November 9th, 1938 with the British White Paper, a policy paper issued by the British government under Neville Chamberlain in which the idea of partitioning the Mandate for Palestine was abandoned in favor of creating an independent Palestine governed by Palestinian Arabs and Jews in proportion to their numbers in the population by 1949 (section I). A limit of 75,000 Jewish immigrants was set for the five-year period 1940-1944, consisting of a regular yearly quota of 10,000, and a supplementary quota of 25,000, spread out over the same period, to cover refugee emergencies.

After this cut-off date, further immigration would depend on the permission of the Arab majority (section II). Restrictions were also placed on the rights of Jews to buy land from Arabs

Despite the White Paper which deeply angered the Zionist leadership in Palestine, David Ben-Gurion, then chairman of the Jewish Agency, set the policy for the Zionist relationship with the British: We shall fight the war against Hitler as if there were no White Paper, and we shall fight the White Paper as if there were no war. The Irgun, however took a more extreme stance starting in 1944 and began bombing British installations.

In the first years of World War II, the British authorities asked Haganah for cooperation again, due to the fear for an Axis breakthrough in North Africa. After Rommel was defeated at El Alamein in 1942, the British stepped back from their all-out support for Haganah. In 1943, after a long series of requests and negotiations, the British Army announced the creation of the Jewish Brigade Group. While Palestinian Jews had been permitted to enlist in the British army since 1940, this was the first time an exclusively Jewish military unit served in the war under a Jewish flag. The Jewish Brigade Group consisted of 5,000 soldiers and was deployed in Italy in September 1944. The brigade was disbanded in 1946.

All in all, more than 30,000 Palestinian Jews served in the British army during the war.

On May 19, 1941 the Haganah created the Palmach (an acronym for Plugot Mahatz—strike companies), an elite military-like section which focused on providing training to youngsters. It was never large — by 1947 it amounted to merely five battalions (about 2,000 men) — but its members had received not only physical and basic military training, but also acquired leadership skills that, in retrospect, would allow them to take up command positions in Israel's future army.

A leaflet signed by Haganah Commander in Tel-Aviv, warning Irgun not to engage in blackmail and other violent criminal acts, or face severe measures (1947)

After the war, the Haganah carried out anti-British operations in Palestine, such as the liberation of interned immigrants from the Atlit camp, the bombing of the country's railroad network, sabotage raids on radar installations and bases of the British Palestine police. It also continued to organize illegal immigration.

On May 28, 1948, less than two weeks after the creation of the state of Israel on May 15, the provisional government created the Israeli Defense Forces which would succeed the Haganah. It also outlawed maintenance of any other armed force.

Famous members of the Haganah included: Yitzhak Rabin, Ariel Sharon, Rehavam Zeevi, Dov Hoz, Moshe Dayan, Yigal Allon and Dr. Ruth Westheimer.

I think it is very important to deal at the very start with Hollywood's Blood Diamonds being a smokescreen and to be very careful about calling us "Nazi America".

There are too many skin-bone-heads around.

Again, the key is not to play in to the violence of people like Buchanan and Clinton, one and the same.

It is much better to ask questions why is this and why is that?

You MUST NOT forget the genius-evil minds of DeBeers who after funding their supporters fund their opposition with untraceable currency that neither their supporters nor pseudo opponents care to talk about which is course, thanks to the internet is all their "undoing".

While it is absolutely true that the Nazis did in fact do much more than win World War II, to most of US Americans who cannot see further than the edge of our noses, not even able to see how so very non-Aryan looking was Hitler, DeBeers who were the principal backers of Hitler continue to so "mischievously" mock US Americans who for 3 generations only know what they have been told by DeBeers who have owned Madison Avenue from September 1938, one year before Hitler invaded Poland when Harry Oppenheimer visited Gerald M. Lauck, president of N. W. Ayer; not to mention 1938 was the same year Nazi sympathizer Joe Kennedy, formerly first chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, resigned as US Ambassador to Great Britain.

US Americans never in a million years thinking who controls the way we look at ourselves on TV, hear ourselves on radio so that when looking in the mirror to be at a loss for why all the band-aid solutions are epidemic; such mindless, repetitive behavior going hand in hand with superficial thinking without, of course any time remaining for self-reflection besides for when drugs fail to purchase like gangbusters self-help books courtesy of Madison Avenue-Hollywood, yet to produce the epic non-fiction most fascinating novel, The Diamond Invention, spelling out the devious nature of DeBeers and Co.

Check out again Chapter 13, THE DIAMOND MIND, starting with the following:

In September 1938, Harry Oppenheimer journeyed to New York City to investigate the possibilities of creating such a diamond mind. He was met by Gerald M. Lauck, who was the president of one of the leading advertising agencies in the United States, N. W. Ayer. Lauck and N. W. Ayer had been recommended to Oppenheimer by the Morgan Bank, which had helped his father consolidate his financial empire. His bankers were clearly concerned by the worldwide decline in the price of diamonds.

In Europe, where diamond prices had collapsed during the Depression, there seemed little possibility of restoring public confidence. In Germany, Austria, Italy and Spain, the notion of giving diamond rings to commemorate an engagement had never taken hold. In England and France, diamonds were still presumed to be a jewel for aristocrats rather than the masses. And in any case, Europe was on the verge of war, and there seemed little possibility of expanding diamond sales. This left the United States as the only real market for De Beers' diamonds.

Even though the "tradition" of giving diamond rings for engagements in America was barely fifty years old, it had survived the Depression. In fact, in 1938, some three quarters of all the cartel's diamonds were sold for engagement rings in the United States. Up until this point, however, American men tended to buy the smaller and poorer quality diamonds, averaging under $80 apiece, for their loved ones. Oppenheimer and the bankers believed that Americans could be persuaded to buy more expensive diamonds through an advertising campaign.

During their initial meeting, Oppenheimer suggested to Lauck that his agency prepare a plan for creating a new image for diamonds among Americans. He assured him that De Beers had not contacted any other American advertising agency with this proposal, and if the N. W. Ayer plan met with his father's approval, it would be the exclusive agents for the placement of the newspaper and radio advertisements in the United States. Moreover, Oppenheimer offered to underwrite the costs of the research necessary for developing the scheme. Lauck, envisioning a new and potentially lucrative account, instantly accepted the offer.

You recall my very intelligent French-Canadian wife bored stiff repeating important stuff because she knows from her own experience when dealing with her and The IT's "tTOo" [sic] children, in one ear and out the other, mentioning DeBeers' Agenda:

YOU THINK YOU ARE MAKING MONEY?

THIS IS THE DEAL. YOU CAN TAKE IT NOW OR OPEN UP A TACO STAND!

It is tough for some 300 million of US Americans plus a few billion others to digest with two words, "Nazi America" that they not only benefitted from backing Hitler and his clowns but the damage done from the Nazis having "single handedly" won World Oil War II is far greater than the lives brutally lost, and worse yet, those on the side of Allies must have also surely lost their minds, a terrible thing to lose.

Consequently, one has to ever so gently lower the "boom" on us American baby boomers and our that much more so self-absorbed kids which is exactly what the ingenious Israeli Military Intelligence report highlighting China, the Jews of the Orient, was designed to do.

Focus on the movies, the actors, the screen writers, the producers, the directors and their unwillingness along with spoiled rotten kids who know better to question loudly the "money trail" as it eats in to their "gravy train".

Time for a homemade hummus dinner along with perfectly ripe pears that were once part of Marie's "still life".

We hope to download the movie Casualties of War; not to mention Marie just commenting following JoNathan letting us know that Chavez is threatening to halt oil exports to the US, "More people are making us their enemy!"

Tomorrow is another day.
